CONTENTS

A Note on the Second Edition	ix
Introduction	3
1. Get Your Mind Right	9
Accepting non-Singular-Seahorse-ness, leaving behind things that are Not a Valid Long-Term Plan, and the value of Real Talk.
2. Domesticity	21
Find an apartment, obtain cute but inexpensive furniture, clean effectively, and generally avoid living in an unlivable hellhole.
3. Cooking	49
Ramen can only take you so far, so stock a kitchen, learn the basics, and maybe, someday, consider throwing a dinner party.
4. Fake It Till You Make It	78
The world only sees your outermost layer (unless you tell it about your HPV, in which case it'll know about your insides, too). Make that layer presentable.
5. Get a Job	117
Find a job, negotiate for your salary, dress for not-sleeping-with-co-workers success, and shut down office creepers.

6. Money	151
Live cheaply, celebrate your poverty, and strive toward the day when forty dollars doesn't seem like too much to pay for pants.
7. Maintenance	173
You can have nice things—if you treat them like they are, in fact, nice things.
8. Friends and Neighbors	202
Ask people on friend-dates, deal with neighborly sex noises, and give apologies worth accepting.
9. Love	228
Dates versus non-dates, fighting like a grown-up, and how to tolerate his or her unbearable friends.
10. Times Were Tough	268
Cope gracefully and eventually move past emergencies large and small via the resilience of the human spirit and the power of safety pins.
11. Families	294
These people changed your diapers, so you owe them one. Convince them your (metaphorical) diapers no longer need changing.
